

Adjusting Multiple Images

Overview

Adjusting images is quick and simple. You can make adjustments to the following:

- a group of images at the same time.
- one image and then apply the changes to other images
- one image and then save the settings to apply the settings to other images in the future.

Adjusting a group of images at the same time

1. Select the images that you want to adjust.
2. The image that you selected first appears in the Preview window.
If you want to create the changes on another image, alt-click the desired image.
3. Make the adjustments to the image in the Preview window. The adjustment will be made to all of the selected images (including thumbnails). You can view the results and even deselect images that you do not want to alter.
4. To save the changes, click Save.

How you adjust one image and then apply the changes to other images

1. Adjust the selected image. Don't save the adjusted settings. The prefix "Custom" is automatically applied to the name of the predefined setting.
2. Alt-click the images that you want to apply the changes to. The predefined settings list shows "As Tagged in Images".
3. Open the predefined setting list and choose the active setting.
4. The changes are automatically applied to all the images.
5. Repeat the above steps for each setting that you want to adjust.
6. Click Save.

Note: You can follow these steps at any time to apply the settings of one image to others.
